Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

I am writing to exercise my right under the Tunney Act to voice my support for Microsoft in light of recent litigation against them. I am extremely dissatisfied with the way this entire matter has been dealt with. In my opinion, this lawsuit was very unfair to Microsoft and has done much to damage the stability of the Information technology industry. Despite the unfair treatment, Microsoft has been more than cooperative from the very beginning. They have even agreed to restrictions and obligations that were not even at issue in the lawsuit. They have even made efforts to restructure aspects of Microsoft's business and product development that were not found to be unlawful by the Court of Appeals. This was all in effort to bring the case to a conclusion and achieve unhindered development of new products.

If that were not enough, Microsoft has also agreed to allow computer makers to make it easier for non-Microsoft software, such as programs from AOL Time Warner and RealNetworks, to be accessed by consumers.

Though this is just a small example of Microsoft's efforts, competitors of Microsoft are still actively trying to undermine the settlement during this review period. This is why I am writing. I am grateful that you value my input and trust that my views and those of others will impact positively on the case against Microsoft.

Respectfully yours,
